

Bio for John Kiernan

John Kiernan is a structural engineer with almost 20 years design experience, and has worked with consultant engineering firms in Dublin and Galway. He became a chartered engineer in late 2009 & then returned home to Longford in March 2010 at the height of the recession worked in the family business- KSSL ((Kiernan Structural Steel Ltd)

KSSL is a family run business, started in 1989. It has factories in Longford & mid Wales & employs over 350 people directly & indirectly.

In Ireland their main construction sectors are pharma, data centres and blue chip. In UK, their main sectors are retro fit in London, warehousing & data centres. In Europe, their main works are pharma & data centres.

John started a Masters in Project Management, part time, in 2013. He is involved in everything in the business, from procurement, design & detailing, to production and site installation.